WEEKLY REFLECTION

This year appears to be a milestone year for global healing following large-scale closures in the wake of COVID-19, inflationary pressures, war, corporate greed, classism, discrimination, new fears around Monkeypox, et cetera. It has been a crisis period for all of us, and a time which has stripped us of many things we have held dear to us.

Our team at Martyrs' Shrine tip-toed into this season cautious of what reopening may mean for the Shrine, the broader church community, our pilgrims, and our tourist visitors. To our surprise and delight, we have found reopening to be a spectacular success. Tens of thousands of people from around the world have flocked back to grace this hilltop again, knowingly or unknowingly finding healing and peace as they have been able to reconnect with their spiritual selves and our community. This, along with Pope Francis' recent visit to Canada to advance reconciliation efforts with our Indigenous communities, we find ourselves in a time of great positive change in the world as we ground ourselves again with new insights on our place in this world. Thank you to everyone who is contributing to healing and reconciliation efforts, and may we continue to heal and strengthen each other as we emerge from this period of turmoil.

- Tyler King, Manager of Marketing and Communications, Martyrs' Shrine.
